

BA/MIA and MIA: International Development & Nonprofit Management

November 2015

The career track is led by Craig McIntosh.

FEATURES

- Integrates economic development theory, policy and empirical strategies for measurement and nonprofit management—essential, state-of-the-art management practices.
- Supplies students with a solid foundation for careers with nongovernmental organizations in international development through the dual focus on development and nonprofit management.
- Offers acquisition of critical knowledge and skills for work in the development and nonprofit sectors. Hands on experience in summer internships provides opportunities to apply and enhance what is learned in academic studies.
- Provides theoretical and quantitative tools to understand and evaluate policy in development contexts, as nonprofit organizations play a major role in the development arena.
